DEFECTIVE PRODUCT LAWYERS: SEEKING JUSTICE FOR CONSUMER HARM

Product liability laws are in place to give protection to the public from any dangerous or defective product, including manufacturing defects, design defects and marketing defects. If you or a loved one was injured while using a product that was dangerous or defective when it left the manufacturer or seller, you may be eligible to recover damages from the responsible party. The manufacturer and seller of the goods can be held liable under product liability law for any dangerous or defective product that they have produced or sold.

The injured person, or plaintiff, in a product liability case has to prove there was a design or manufacturing defect in the product that caused their injury and that the manufacturer did not give sufficient warning against the possible dangers of the product. The experienced product liability and personal injury lawyers at Romanucci & Blandin offer a free evaluation of your case and working with you can determine if you have a claim against a manufacturer or seller. We understand defective and dangerous products can cause serious and even catastrophic injury, and if you or a loved one or family member have been injured by a defective or dangerous product, we will work to help you get the compensation you deserve.

Product liability claims

The three main types of product liability claims include:

- Design defect-The faulty design of the product caused an injury
- Failure to warn-The product's packaging did not contain a proper warning label that informed consumers about the safety hazards of the property, which resulted in injuries from using the product
- Manufacturing defect-During the manufacturing process, a defect in the product occurred which caused serious physical injuries

Manufacturing defects are typically easier to prove than design defects. When you are trying to prove a design defect, you need to pass judgment on the technical choices and you generally need expert testimony. Our law firm's dangerous or defective product attorneys will give you the legal guidance and assistance you need with your claim.
