PRODUCT LIABILITY AND FAULTY MACHINERY OR TOOLS LAWYERS | ROMANUCCI & BLANDIN

If you or a loved one are around faulty machinery or tools, the defects in it can cause serious injuries or even death. If a manufacturer, retailer or distributor permits faulty machinery to be put on the market, they may be held responsible for any injuries, damages or deaths that occur as a result. While the result of their product defects may cause lasting or permanent damages to you or your loved one, it is important to know you can still seek compensation and justice.

Romanucci & Blandin's Chicago-based personal injury and product liability attorneys can give you legal guidance and help you understand your rights under the product liability laws. We will determine if your claim is valid against the manufacturer, retailer or distributor for any injuries, damages or death that resulted from the defective machinery.

Working with any type of machinery can be dangerous, but some machines and tools pose a higher risk than others, including:

- Automobiles
- Construction equipment
- Cranes
- Farm equipment/machinery
- Forklifts
- Ladders and scaffolding
- Landscape equipment
- Power tools
- Production line equipment

Product liability litigation in Illinois

In a product liability lawsuit regarding defective machinery or tools, the plaintiff needs to prove that the machinery or tool was defective and that the manufacturer, retailer or distributor is liable. Our product liability litigators can help you recover any damages from the accident, which may include:

- Compensation for injuries or death
- Compensation to family members
- Lost wages
- Medical expenses
- Property damage
- Pain and suffering

While these can come from large companies, you still have a voice and can seek compensation. Medical bills can add up fast when you are wrongfully injured, and our personal injury attorneys understand this and will work with you to review all aspects of your injuries and damages suffered.

Our attorneys offer a free evaluation of your injury claim. It is important to reach out as soon as possible to a product liability and personal injury attorney so they can do a comprehensive review of the facts of your case and relevant medical records and medical bills. We understand the product liability laws and handle these claims.
