WORKPLACE INJURY AND REPETITIVE TRAUMA INJURIES | ROMANUCCI & BLANDIN

Repetitive trauma injuries are called a variety of names, including repetitive stress injuries, repetitive motion injuries, cumulative trauma disorders, repetitive strain injuries and regional musculoskeletal disorders. These terms all describe an injury that is caused by repeating a specific task or action. A high number of repetitive trauma injuries are caused by a repetitive task that is done at work, which allows the victims to file for workers' compensation benefits.

The most common types of repetitive trauma injuries include:

- Carpal tunnel syndrome
- Cubital tunnel syndrome
- Chronic knee injuries
- Chronic neck pain
- Rotator cuff injuries
- Spinal disc injuries
- Tendonitis

Repetitive trauma injuries are not the result of a single accident, but are developed over a period of time. It can be more difficult to prove that the repetitive trauma injury is work-related, which is why you need Romanucci & Blandin's workers' compensation attorneys to help you get the benefits you deserve.

Our experienced workers' compensation and repetitive trauma injury attorneys will provide a free evaluation and work to review your claim, medical records and bills and other relevant documents available so we can best evaluate your claim. We understand that these cases are hard and that you need a tough lawyer helping you fight for just compensation.
