Illinois officers who fatally shot a Black teen left him to bleed out on the ground for 8 minutes without treatment, his mother alleges in a lawsuit

INSIDER | November 1, 2020

A Black teenager in Illinois “bled out on the ground” for more than eight minutes without receiving aid after a Waukegan officer discharged his firearm on the vehicle he was sitting in, according to a federal lawsuit filed by the teenager’s mother on Thursday and local reports.

Zharvellis Holmes— Marcellis Stinnette’s mother— lawsuit names two officers, the city of Waukegan, and its police chief as defendants.
